

Subject: Property Owners / List a Property Page – UX Improvements

Hi Team,

I have reviewed the current Property Owners / List a Property page:

<https://asancha.vercel.app/solutions/property-owners>

The page contains the right underlying information and appropriately reflects important Asancha rules around property submission, ownership/authority, controlled visibility and publication.

However, from a customer UX perspective, the page is currently too long and operational for a property owner whose primary objective is simply to understand the benefit and start listing their property.

I would like us to simplify the page significantly while retaining the underlying business rules and controls.

The customer journey should essentially communicate:

Why list with Asancha? → What do I need? → How does it work? → List my property

1. Update the Hero

The current proposition:

“Present your property through a more structured process.”

focuses on Asancha’s process rather than the benefit to the property owner.

Please change the hero direction to:

LIST YOUR PROPERTY

List Your Property and Reach Relevant Buyers & Investors

Submit your property to Asancha and connect with relevant investors and property professionals through a structured, secure process.

Primary CTA: List My Property

Secondary CTA: How It Works

Please use List My Property as the user-facing action rather than making Create a Property Owner Account the main CTA.

Account creation can still occur when required after the user starts the listing journey.

2. Remove “What This Role Manages”

Please remove the current What This Role Manages section.

Information such as property type, location, listing description and ownership/authority is more useful when the owner starts their property submission rather than as an explanatory homepage section.

3. Consolidate the Problem/Benefits Sections

Please combine Why Property Owners Need Better Structure and the existing benefits content into one concise section:

Why List Your Property on Asancha?

Reach Relevant Investors

Present approved property opportunities to investors looking for properties matching their requirements.

Protect Sensitive Information

Keep sensitive property, ownership and deal information appropriately controlled.

Manage Everything in One Place

Manage your property information, documents and progression from your account.

Track Your Progress

See when your property is being reviewed, requires action or progresses through the appropriate stages.

Please keep this visually concise—ideally four cards rather than several explanatory sections.

4. Simplify Property Submission to “What You’ll Need”

Replace the long Property Submission explanation with:

What You’ll Need

Property Details

Property type, location, bedrooms, tenure and occupancy information.

Price & Investment Information

Asking price, rental information and relevant investment information where applicable.

Photos & Description

Images, features and information that help investors understand the opportunity.

Ownership / Authority Information

Information confirming that you own the property or are authorised to submit it.

CTA: Start Listing Your Property

Detailed fields should appear within the actual submission journey rather than being explained on this page.

5. Consolidate Ownership, Visibility and Trust

The current Property Authority, Controlled Visibility and Trust Boundaries sections contain important rules but create too much detail and repetition on the customer-facing page.

Please consolidate them into one section:

Secure & Controlled Property Listing

Ownership & Authority Checks

We may ask for information confirming that you own the property or are authorised to submit it.

Protected Information

Sensitive property, ownership and deal information is kept separate from public information and made available only where appropriate.

Controlled Publication

Submitting a property does not automatically publish it. Opportunities follow the appropriate review and publication process.

Learn More about Verification & Access →

The detailed evidence types, access levels and governance rules should remain in the underlying platform/business rules and be presented to users when relevant during their journey, rather than all being explained on this page.

6. Simplify “How It Works”

Please reduce the current operational six-step journey to four customer-facing steps:

How It Works

1. List Your Property

Create your account and tell us about the property.

2. Verify & Review

Provide any required ownership/authority information and submit the property for review.

3. Reach Relevant Investors

Once approved for publication, the opportunity can be presented to relevant investors.

4. Track & Progress

Manage the property and follow its progression through your account.

The underlying system can continue to maintain the detailed onboarding, verification and publication states. We simply don't need to expose all of those as separate marketing-page steps.

7. Remove the Duplicate “Property Information” Section

The later Property Information section substantially repeats information already covered under Property Submission/What You'll Need.

Please remove this as a separate section.

8. Keep FAQs – But Use Accordions

Please retain the useful owner FAQs covering areas such as:

- Account requirements
- Whether submission guarantees publication
- Ownership/authority requirements
- Address/privacy
- Whether Asancha guarantees a buyer
- Updating or withdrawing a property

Please display these as collapsed accordions so they don't unnecessarily increase the page length.

9. Final CTA

Please end the page simply with:

Ready to List Your Property?

List My Property

Avoid introducing another long explanation at the bottom of the page.

10. Recommended Final Page Structure

The final page should therefore be:

Hero – List Your Property and Reach Relevant Buyers & Investors

Why List With Asancha?

What You'll Need

How It Works – List → Verify & Review → Reach Investors → Progress

Secure & Controlled Property Listing

Important

This is a frontend UX/content simplification, not a request to remove or weaken Asancha's underlying property submission, ownership/authority, verification, privacy, publication or access-control rules.

Please use progressive disclosure: give property owners the information they need to make a decision and start listing, then explain detailed requirements at the relevant point in the listing/onboarding journey.

Also, please minimise internal/system terminology on the customer-facing page. The owner should experience the journey simply as:

List Property → Verify & Review → Reach Investors → Track & Progress

The objective is to make the page shorter, more benefit-led and more conversion-focused, while maintaining Asancha's trust and governance requirements.

Thank you.
